CLASS PARTICIPATION, COMMITMENT, AND TEAMWORK

Participation, attendance, contribution, effort, and feedback are essential elements of event planning. To develop teamwork skills, it is important that students actively participate in all classes. Participation includes:

- * Attending regularly scheduled classes, as well as any classes, group meetings, student functions, tours/presentations, etc. scheduled outside of regular class hours
- * Arriving on time and being prepared
- * Actively participating in, and contributing to, the class or group discussions and/or activities
- * Listening to others
- * Remaining attentive
- * Staying focused and on track
- * Making commitments to perform tasks and meet goals
- * Completing a fair share of the work
- * Following through and completing assigned tasks
- * Acting in a cooperative manner
- * Helping promote a climate of trust and mutual respect
- * Handling conflicts in an open and constructive fashion
- * Exhibiting positive body language
- * Displaying respect for others

Note: Participation at all scheduled class functions/events represents 20 percent of the final grade.

PREPARATION OF MEETING DOCUMENTATION

Depending on the event format, meeting documentation could include preparation of event notices, programs, fliers, summary reports, thank-you letters, budget summaries, etc.

EVENT FORMAT

The event itself will be evaluated on its overall effectiveness, which would include such elements as timing, adherence to budget, attainment of goals and objectives, team involvement and participation, etc. This mark is assigned to the group as a whole.

Field trips and guest speakers may be arranged to complement classroom learning.
