EVALUATION METHODS:

Exams: Two (2) tests will be given in this course. The mid-term test will cover information from the beginning of the course to mid October. The final test will cover information from mid October to the end of the course. Tests CANNOT be re-written in order to obtain a higher grade. Tests may be rescheduled, at the discretion of the professor for substantiated reasons for absence on test day. Students who miss a test MUST make rescheduling arrangements directly and IMMEDIATELY with the professor.

Assignment 1: Students must set up an appointment to visit a local addictions services provider and learn what they do. Students can choose an agency from the COMMUNITY INFORMATION DIRECTORY or through other sources and the following shall be included in the oral presentation (5-8 minutes) and paper (2-3 pages):

- Address of agency and contact person
- Services provided
- Target group served (ex: teen-aged men, Native women)
- Sources of funding for the agency (municipal, provincial, federal).
- Ministry and legislation to which the agency is accountable.
- Your response to the visit

A time and date must be arranged with the professor as soon as you determine which agency you are visiting. Students cannot choose the same agency to visit, therefore, choosing your agency, scheduling your time and date as soon as possible, will be to your advantage.

- Assignment 2: Students will attend a workshop on an addictions related issue. Students will give a short oral presentation to the class (5-8 minutes), and turn in a short written report (2-3 pages). The written report should include:
- Title and subject of workshop
 - Who sponsored the workshop and where it took place
 - Copy of workshop outline or agenda
 - Summary of workshop events
 - Student response to the workshop
- Assignment 3: Students shall create their own workshop. This is a group project and will take a high degree of cooperation among students to be successful. Detailed guidelines with relation to this project will be provided in class. Following the workshop, students must turn in a 2-3 page response paper.
- Assignment 4: Students shall investigate and report on current addiction issues reported in the media. Students will choose three (3) related media articles from newspapers, web sites, current television news programs (must be recorded), radio (must be recorded), or other media source. Students will summarize each article/program in their own words and will provide a personal comment on the community impact of their chosen issue. Articles and recordings of programs are to be turned in with the paper.
- Assignment 5: Fictitious Client Assessment. The student will create a fictitious client and show how the client responds to various assessment tests. The student will turn in these tests along with a report discussing how the addiction is affecting the patient's life in the following areas: economic, legal, personal interests and hobbies, medical, family, job and or education.
