In brief, it involves a reflection on the personal impact of each chapter of the text. It is completed upon completion of review of each chapter. It is to be submitted to the professor upon request throughout the term (the value is lost if it is not done after each chapter but is left entirely to the end this assignment is designed to help the student to "track" their learning progress). At the end of the semester, the entire journal is submitted, together with a concluding discussion on the personal impact of the course overall, including a description of the growth which occurred personally, the Human Relations skills learned and how they are being used, and the relevance of this journal assignment.
- 4. Class Involvement: This course depends upon students being punctual, present and involved. Learning for everyone is enhanced when the students contribute, question, challenge, share, risk and support. At the end of the term each student will be asked to comment on the quality of their involvement, including but not limited to: attendance, punctuality, constructive contribution, demonstration of respect, demonstration of skills learned, preparedness for class.

People who are present in class can only make contributions. Therefore, the grading for this section will be scaled to the attendance statistic for each student. If the overall attendance falls below 60% of the class time, the grade for this section will be "0". Students who find it difficult to attend classes are invited to discuss this with the professor. Such discussion does not change the requirements of this section.

GRADING SUMMARY:

1.	Tests: 3 tests, each one worth 15%; total worth	45%
2.	Assignments: 4 assignments, each out of 5; total worth	20%
3.	Personal Reflection Journal	10%
4.	Involvement	25%

SPECIAL NOTES:

1. The nature of this experience:

This course is set up to be an educational experience. The premise of the course is that a person can only integrate and apply Human Relations concepts and skills when they have applied them personally. Anything less may be viewed as not genuine. To this end, a degree of personal disclosure will be encouraged and expected. Students will learn how to create an "atmosphere of safety and encouragement" which invites personal disclosure and improves Human Relations.

This course is not intended to be a therapy session. The professor will be vigilant in this regard. Excessive or dominating personal disclosure will be redirected, respectfully, in the direction of the course objectives. Students are reminded of the services of the College, including counseling, to assist with personal matters. The professor can explain and assist further.

The professor, within legal and professional limits observes confidentiality. This applies to all course discussions and assignments. Students are required to observe confidentiality in the same fashion. If a student believes there to be a need to discuss another student's actions or personal disclosures which occur in this course, this must be done first with the course professor. Any "breach" of confidentiality will be investigated as a possible violation of the Early Childhood Education professional ethics, and as a possible violation of Sault College's Student Rights and Responsibilities.

Students are expected to be familiar with the Association of Early Childhood Education, Ontario (AECE,O) Code of Ethics. As well, students are expected to be familiar with Sault College's Student Rights and Responsibilities (contained in the Student Handbook).
