Ends in View and Processes:

Ends in View	Process
This course introduces learners to a guided exploration of self. As opposed to self-analysis, it focuses on illuminating aspects of self as a precursor to the development of therapeutic engagement with another. The transformation from a self-focus towards being a nurse within a professional relationship requires that the student continually reflect on the presence of self for an understanding of living the nursing role. As a complement to the learning process, Johns (2009) model of structured reflection will facilitate the expansion of the personal blueprints of thinking, to begin charting a way in becoming a nurse.

1. Understand the importance of self-awareness as it relates to self-assessment within the context of the nurse-client relationship.
2. Demonstrate an understanding of therapeutic relationships guided by related professional and ethical frameworks.
3. Demonstrate an understanding of the regulatory requirements related to reflection on one's practice.
4. Demonstrate an understanding of the process of self-reflection through the application of a guiding model.
5. Perform self-evaluation through the reflective process and peer feedback.
6. Create a learning plan based on self-reflection and peer evaluation.

Although the materials selected for classes facilitate self-directed learning, participation in preparatory and in-class work is an expectation. The intent of the learning materials is to engage the learner in the challenge of becoming a professional nurse. As a learner in a professional school, he/she is encouraged to find critical peers and to access other forums for collegial exchange. In relation to BSCN 1004, you will be required to write structured reflections based on a model used for reflection
