PHILOSOPHY/GOALS:

There is an undeniable link between a healthy family structure and a healthy community life. To work effectively in the community, we must be aware of both healthy and unhealthy family dynamics and situations. This course will explore changes in the Native family structure and issues challenging all families, including family violence.

LEARNING OUTCOMES:

Upon receiving credit for this course, each student will have reliably demonstrated an ability to:

1. Identify challenges that Native families experience when attempting to adapt "pre-contact" child-rearing techniques in today's society.
2. Uncover the roots of current Native family issues in the North American Native experience.
3. Anticipate the needs of individuals/families who exhibit characteristics/situational clues of the dynamics of family violence.
4. Chart a genogram which includes complete family information available.

Due to overlap in subject areas, these topics will not always be dealt with in isolated learning units.

There are two (2) case studies completed for this course. Each case study will be provided during class time to enable "case conferencing" with small groups. The completed papers will be worked on individually and handed in. Specifics on process and format will be provided in class.

Two (2) tests will be given in this course. The first will cover information up to the date of the test. The second test will cover information taken in the second half of the course, it will NOT cover information from the beginning of the course. Tests CANNOT be rewritten in order to obtain a higher grade. Tests may be rescheduled, at the discretion of the instructor, for substantiated reasons for absence on test day. Students who miss a test MUST make rescheduling arrangements directly and IMMEDIATELY with the instructor.

The Genogram Assignment is an independent project which will be completed under the supervision of the instructor during scheduled class times. Genograms are used in the social service field to chart family history. Specifics on process and format will be provided in class.

Students will create their own representation of the Cycle of Abuse/Cycle of Recovery. Format and specifics to be given in class.

Community and Violence Report will be 3 - 5 typewritten pages. Your report will illustrate how a Native community (urban or First Nation) addresses the Domestic Violence issues affecting its members. Specifics on format and content to be given in class by instructor.
