The focus of this course is to continue to foster the students' professional growth, a challenging process shaped by complex professional, institutional, health and social issues. Previous course work served to highlight nurses' understanding and responses to dilemmas in relation to numerous factors such as professional self-awareness, ethical decision-making, cultural sensitivity, and the climate of his/her community of practice. The student will demonstrate critical appraisal of the nursing and health care literature and critical thinking skills in the examination of professional and practice issues. Emphasis is on growth of the learner as a professional nurse who is critically reflective. For both novice and advanced practice nurses, critical examination of issues for the purpose of moving towards purposeful action is not necessarily a linear process. The goal of this course is to increase students' sensitivity, capacities and responsible decision making (Burkhardt, Nathaniel & Walton, 2010) by assisting	LEARNING PROCESS Learners will have the opportunity to use critical thinking, reflection, and strategy development to explore various ways to influence change in their clinical setting. To enhance flexibility in fulfilling clinical hours for this year, professional dialogue on relevant topics will be conducted through a mixture of on campus and asynchronous scholarly web-based discussions. Through web based discussions key ideas, framework, and theory, learners will develop skills and knowledge which will then be translated into their placements by way of their assignments. This will afford learners the opportunity to see theory and practice align and it will provide an opportunity for learners to test their own leadership competencies in the real world. Each learner is expected to reflect upon the assigned readings and discuss the questions assigned in the learning activities through weekly web postings.
