GENERAL DESCRIPTION

Beginning with a review of the structure and format of technical reports, this course develops the student's investigative, rhetorical and problem-solving skills in preparing several types of oral and written reports for several types of audiences.

COURSE OBJECTIVES

The student will:

1. understand and deal effectively with some psychological elements of communications.
2. understand the difference between reports, inferences and judgments.
3. be able to give a short casual oral report.
4. recognize the importance of non-verbal language.
5. write effective memos (formal and informal) in response to given situations.
6. write effective business letters in response to given situations.
7. give an informal proposal for a project.
8. know procedures for preparing a proposal.
9. present a formal written proposal for a project.
10. present a formal oral proposal for a project, or explain a technical point to a non-technical audience.
11. present a formal progress report on a project.
12. prepare a draft copy of a project report.
13. edit the draft copy of a project report.
14. submit a written copy of a report which demonstrates an understanding of the mechanics, conventions and sound principles of effective technical reporting.

FORMAT FOR ASSIGNMENTS

All out-of-class assignments are to be neatly written or lettered on unlined, white paper (8-1/2 in. by 11 in.) using borders as follows: 1-1/2 in. at top and left, and 1 in. on right and bottom of the page. Assignments must have a covering page bearing the following information:

- title of assignment
- date
- name and class of author
- name of instructor

ATTENDANCE

Students are expected to attend all classes. Tardiness will not be tolerated. In-class assignments (or tests) missed because of absence will be graded "zero".

"Make-up" tests may be arranged for students who have suffered a substantial illness, accident or other hardship. However, such arrangements are to be at the discretion and convenience of the teacher subject to the constraints of time and the availability of facilities and suitable alternative tests.

GRADING

50% of the final grade is based on tests and assignments.
50% of the final grade will be for the writing and editing of a report.

Students are required to maintain a file of completed assignments and tests so that the teacher can check revised work and note the student's progress in dealing with specific problems.

All assignments are due at the beginning of class on the date specified. Work handed in late will receive no higher than a "Complete" or "C" grade. Revised assignments may be upgraded to a "C". The "B" grade is given for above average work and the "A" grade is reserved for outstanding work. Tests may be graded numerically and then assigned an "A", "B" or "C".
