COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course is designed to provide students with the means to achieve a sociological orientation or perspective to analysis of social events. The basis of sociology, i.e. its approaches to the study of society, community and social change, will be presented.

COURSE OBJECTIVES

Upon successful completion of this course, the student

1. will have achieved a means of viewing and exploring the meaning of social events from a sociological rather than personal and emotional stance.
2. will understand the basic vocabulary common to the discipline.
3. will understand the interrelationship of society, social structure, culture and socialization.

TOPICS TO BE COVERED

1. What is sociology? Methods of Sociological Research
- Chapter 1 & 2
2. Culture - Chapter 3
3. Social Interaction - Chapter 4
4. Socialization - Chapter 5
5. Groups and Organizations - Chapter 6

NOTE: These topics sometimes overlap several areas and are not necessarily intended to be explored in isolated learning units or in the above order.

INSTRUCTIONAL METHODS/CLASS ACTIVITIES

This course is designed to provide the student with as many opportunities as possible to gain an understanding of sociology through personal experience. Many "contrived social experiences" will be complemented by instruction on how to analyze what happens to us in the social world. The text, which is required reading, will provide the themes of study, and will be augmented by group work, films, discussion, lectures and sharing of information by students.

REQUIRED RESOURCES

Spencer, Metta. (1993). Foundations of Modern Sociology. Scarborough: Prentice Hall Canada.

EVALUATION METHOD

Journal activities	20%
Short answer tests - (2)	40%
Midterm test (multiple choice)	20%
Final Test (multiple choice)	20%
TOTAL	100%

Anyone who is incomplete in 30% or more of graded course components will receive a final grade of "R."

The grading system will be as follows:

- A+ - 90 - 100%
- A - 80 - 89%
- B = 70 - 79%
- C = 60 - 69%
- R = Unsatisfactory - below 60% (course must be repeated)

NOTE: Students who miss a test must notify the professor in advance if possible or at the earliest opportunity to request a rewrite. Allowing the rewrite is at the professor's discretion if the student has provided a reasonable excuse for the absence. Requests for rewrites will be denied if made one week or more after the test date.
